
COMMONWEALTH :

A Journal of Political Science

Volume 1

1987

ISSN 0890-2410

COMMONWEALTH :

A Journal of Political Science

EDITOR: Donald G. Tannenbaum, Gettysburg College

MANAGING EDITOR: Annette Steigelfest, Widener University

EDITORIAL REVIEW BOARD

Aryeh Botwinick
(Temple University)

Michael J. Malbin
(University of Maryland)

David Butler
(Nuffield College/Oxford University)

Harvey C. Mansfield, Jr.
(Harvard University)

M. Margaret Conway
(University of Maryland)

Kenneth F. Mott
(Gettysburg College)

Lester G. Crocker
(University of Virginia, Emeritus)

Craig N. Murphy
(Wellsley College)

Roger H. Davidson
(Library of Congress)

Mark P. Petracca
(University of California, Irvine)

Ivo D. Duchacek
(City University of New York, Emeritus)

Elmer Plischke
(University of Maryland, Emeritus)

Jean B. Elshtain
(University of Massachusetts, Amherst)

Robert J. Pranger
(American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research)

Richard F. Fenno
(University of Rochester)

H. Mark Roelofs
(New York University)

Marianne Githens
(Goucher College)

Bruce M. Russett
(Yale University)

Michael B. Grossman
(Towson State University)

Victoria Schuck
(Stanford University)

Susan W. Hammond
(American University)

J. David Singer
(University of Michigan)

Dorothy B. James
(American University)

Alonzo T. Stephens, Sr.
(Tennessee State University, Emeritus)

Samuel Krislov
(University of Minnesota)

Elliott White
(Temple University)

G. Calvin Mackenzie
(Colby College)

Aaron Wildavsky
(University of California, Berkeley)

COMMONWEALTH:

A Journal of Political Science

CONTENTS

Volume I

1987
ISSN 0890-2410

GENERAL ARTICLES

Nominalism and Conceptualism in Hobbes's
Political Theory 1

Kerry H. Whiteside

Costa Rican Democracy: Pluralism and Class Rule 26

John A. Peeler

Pluralism and Democracy in Yugoslavia:
Reform or Paralysis 57

Zachary T. Irwin

PENNSYLVANIA RESEARCH

Implementation of Title IX: Perspectives of Pennsylvania Sport Leaders 80

George T. Force

Patterns of Campaign Finance in Pennsylvania's
1982 Legislative Elections 96

James Eisenstein

It is especially satisfying to bring to life a new scholarly publication. The primary gratification comes from making available new and valuable research to the readers, as each article demonstrates how sophisticated inquiry directed to salient questions yields important findings and conclusions. Working with our authors, editors and reviewers has been another major source of pleasure; my special thanks to these colleagues from Cambridge to Berkeley, to those at APSA and abroad, to a number of editors of established journals who provided helpful guidance, and to the executives and council members of PPSA. Finally, the opportunity to engage in an enterprise supported by a number of excellent educational institutions occasions considerable satisfaction. We who have been involved in the creation of COMMONWEALTH hope that our readers derive as much value from its contents as we did in putting it together, and we invite your comments and suggestions.

About the Authors

James Eisenstein is a Professor of Political Science at the Pennsylvania State University. Author of several monographs on the legal process, his articles and book reviews have appeared in American Political Science Review and Political Science Quarterly.

George T. Force is a member of the Political Science Department at Slippery Rock University. His particular areas of interest are legislative processes, the presidency, state and local government, and research methodology.

Zachary T. Irwin is an Assistant Professor of Political Science at the Behrend College of Pennsylvania State University. His earlier work has appeared in East European Quarterly and The Canadian Journal of American Studies, and chapters in Religion and Nationalism in Soviet and East European Politics (Duke University Press, 1984) and Yugoslavia in the 1980's (Westview 1985), both edited by Pedro Ramet. He had a Fulbright-Hayes Fellowship to Yugoslavia in 1973-4.

John A. Peeler is Professor of Political Science and Co-Coordinator of Latin American Studies at Bucknell University. He is the author of Latin American Democracies: Colombia, Costa Rica, Venezuela (University of North Carolina Press, 1985).

Kerry H. Whiteside teaches Political Theory at Franklin and Marshall College. He has written previously on the relationships between perception and politics in the works of Maurice Merleau-Ponty.

Acknowledgment

In addition to the Pennsylvania Political Science Association, the following institutions have provided special financial support for COMMONWEALTH:

Gettysburg College

Juniata College

King's College

Lehigh University

Lycoming College

Pennsylvania State University, Behrend Campus

Pennsylvania State University at Harrisburg

St. Francis College

Villanova University

Widener University

York College of Pennsylvania

A special word of gratitude to Widener University which provided a grant making publication of this journal possible.

THE PENNSYLVANIA
POLITICAL SCIENCE ASSOCIATION

OFFICERS

President
Frank T. Colon
(Lehigh University)

First Vice President
Donald G. Tannenbaum
(Gettysburg College)

Second Vice President
Michael Roskin
(Lycoming College)

Secretary-Treasurer
Melvin Kulbicki
(York College of Pennsylvania)

Past President
Donald Buzinkai
(King's College)

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

Thomas Baldino
(Juniata College)

Patricia Crotty
(East Stroudsburg University)

Zachary Irwin
(Pennsylvania State University,
Behrend College)

W. Wesley McDonald
(Elizabethtown College)

Joseph Melusky
(St. Francis College)

Lloyd Woodruff
(Pennsylvania State University, at Harrisburg)

COMMONWEALTH is published annually in the Winter under the authorization of the Pennsylvania Political Science Association and is sent to all members, individual and institutional.

Subscription rates to non-members: individual, $5 (includes PPSA membership); institutions and libraries, $12; students, $3; add $1 for any mailing to foreign countries. Subscriptions and changes of address sent to PPSA Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. Melvin Kulbicki, York College of Pennsylvania, York, PA 17405. Postmaster: send notification about undelivered journals to this address. Second class postage paid at York, PA and at additional mailing offices. Copyright 1986 by the Pennsylvania Political Science Association. (ISSN 0890-2410) Advertising and reprint information and rates are available from Dr. Kulbicki.

COMMONWEALTH will print free of charge camera-ready official announcements of up to one page of the American Political Science Association, the Northeastern Political Science Association and its constituent members, and other organizations whose Journals provide corresponding privileges to PPSA. Closing date is January 15. Contact the Editor.